

Must Help Europe Rearm Says Connally

Washington, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Senator Connally (D-Text) told the Senate today that the United States must help Europe reararm in order to "keep ourselves and our friends free from war and the threat of war."

Connally opened debate on the $1,214,010,000 foreign arms program. Endorsed by the foreign relations committee, which Connally heads, the program is the administration's latest move to strengthen friendly nations against communism.

Without mentioning Russia by name, Connally said that one European power now has 5,000,000 men under arms while Western European nations have little in the way of arms to protect themselves. He added:

"In this shrunken world in which we now live, we cannot afford to have our friends so weak that they will invite aggression and be picked off one by one like pigeons in a shooting gallery."

This weakness, he said, "invites aggression and aggression, if allowed to continue, is a certainty brings war in its wake."

Connally said that many people object to the military program because of the financial cost. But he added: "Yet I find it extremely difficult to put a price tag on world peace."

He said the program "contains $1,000,000,000 for the North Atlantic pact nations... is not designed to give Western Europe complete military security in 12 months."

This would be an impossible task, he said, adding the arms will only bring present military

She shows little of the temperament that is supposed to be the trademark of the prima donna, and she still gets a kid's kick out of her success. In a glass-covered coffee table before her fireplace she keeps batons given her by Arturo Toscanini and other conductors.

And what is she proudest of? "That I came up the American way," she said. "We have everything here — but so few people realize it."

50 Persons Hurt in Train Derailment

Newton, N. C., Sept. 19 — (AP) — Six cars and the locomotive of a Southern railway passenger train jumped the track and spilled down an embankment here today injuring about 50 persons, some seriously.

Railroad sources said two Negro cooks were trapped in their diner and probably were dead. An emergency call for steel cutting equipment was sent out by police in efforts to rescue them and any other possibly trapped in the mass of wreckage.

Newton is about 40 miles northwest of Charlotte.

Ambulances raced the injured to the C. & N. General hospital, where Dr. Frank Jones said "about 50" patients had been admitted.

The accident occurred about 5:10 a. m. as the westbound train, No. 15, approached the Newton station where it had been due at 4:48 a. m. It was inside the city limits.

The two-unit diesel locomotive flipped off the rails and rolled down the embankment. Following it off were the diner, a passenger coach, a combination passenger-baggage car and three mail and express cars.

Once this aid is given, Connally said, then the United States has started down a road on which it can turn back "without serious damage to the cause of world peace."

Secretary of Defense Johnson, Connally noted, has estimated the arms program will last for five years — with the cost getting smaller each year.

Someone to Love

"He'll listen all right," Nina Cushman put in. "He'll listen and hate Jenny forever for having told him."

You'd have thought Jenny Poljeska was a bride, dressing for her wedding, the way all the girls crowded around her in the big models' dressing room at Max's salon. She straightened the collar of her brown velvet suit, and stared at her reflection in the mirror, feeling self-conscious and uncomfortable.

"You look positively wonderful in brown velvet, with those eyes of yours, Jenny," someone exclaimed. "Now put on the hat!"

Jenny set the brown velvet bonnet on her head and tied the decorative tulle ribbons under her chin. She tipped her head. The hat did give her face a pleasant look, accentuating the brightness of her brown eyes and the well-brushed sheen of her short brown curls.

"Golly, Jen," one of the other girls cried, "the guy won't even listen to what you have to tell him, once he sees you in that hat! You look like a doll!"

"He'll listen all right," Nina Cushman put in. "He'll listen, and hate Jenny forever for having told him."

Jenny colored a little as she turned away from the mirror and picked up her short brown lapin jacket. Nina was her best friend. And she couldn't help wondering if perhaps Nina wasn't right about her going to meet Tod.

It was snowing outside, one of those last snows of winter, great feathery flakes swimming lazily down. Jenny thought of taking a taxi, and then decided against it. She had plenty of time, and the snow was nice. The shop windows were filled with new spring toys, pastel suits, bouquets of spring flowers and new hats and white gloves. But her mind wasn't on the shop windows. She could only think of Tod.

"Somehow I got the idea I was in love with him. But it was a long time ago, and it's all over now."

The words hadn't sounded convincing even to her own ears. Why? Because they weren't true. She was in love with Tod still. After all this time. It was silly, but one couldn't help such things.

She ought to be planning how she would break the bad news about Liz to him, but instead she kept remembering Tod the way he used to be, before he ever got to running around with the crowd on the hill.

In high school she had been his girl. Summers on Sunday afternoons the two of them used to go with her father out to the fishing shack on the river to spend the day swimming and fishing. It had been such fun. She didn't suppose Tod even thought of those good times any more, or all the other fun they'd had together. The Duncans had used to live on Catalpa street then too, and Tod used to spend more time at Jenny's house than he did at home.

Pop had liked him. He used to say to Jenny, "That Duncan family don't amount to a tinker's dam, taken as a whole, Jenny, but Tod's different, almost like he didn't belong to them. Now if your mother was alive, I suppose she'd have a fit about your seeing so much of him, because she never liked any of 'em. But I'd be pleased if you was to end up marryin' Tod. He's got good stuff in him, that boy."

Jenny used to blush and protest angrily when Pop said things like that. But inside it had given her satisfaction, because no other boy had ever interested her in the least. Then Tod had met Liz Conover somewhere and started running with the crowd on the hill. At first Jenny had been invited to their parties too. But after the summer Tod had begun dating Liz steadily, she'd not had more than a passing glimpse of him.

That summer there'd been a lot of pictures of Liz and Tod in the Sunday rotogravures. Jenny still had one of them tucked away in her handkerchief box. A good picture of Tod, showing his infectious smile, the reckless look of laughter in his eyes, the fine high forehead topped with a mass of dark curling hair. Tod was so handsome!

He'd fall he'd gone to the State University on a football scholarship. Liz had gone there too. Sometimes Pop would see Tod's picture on the sports page of the newspaper and point it out to her. He'd become a nationally known football player in a very few years. Then at the end of that third year an injury had put an end to the career. There was a long stay in the hospital in Capitol City and then an even longer stay in the East where some sort of operation was performed on his back.

He was coming home now to Capitol City. The society page of the Gazette had been full of the coming nuptials for weeks. He and Liz were going to be married to the tune of considerable fanfare. The only hitch was that Liz had eloped with someone else yesterday.

The Newspapers didn't know about the elopement yet. Meanwhile she had the unpleasant task of meeting Tod at the railroad station and being the first to break the news to him.

Her heart began to pound as she went up the long steps of the big limestone Union Station and through the swinging doors into the vaulted waiting room. The train caller's nasal tones echoed in the huge room, mingling with the rumble of baggage trucks, the sound of voices, and the thin reedy wail of a freight baby.

"Train from New York coming in on track two! Train from New York!"

Jenny hurried to the gates, her face anxious. A few passersby

Threatened Judge Says Mother-in-Law

Atlanta, Sept. 19 — (AP) — Judge Robert Carpenter's 62-year-old mother-in-law told a jury today she once threatened to kill him when he made improper advances toward her.

Mrs. Minnie Sullivan testified in the trial of the debonair 44-year-old judge charged with assault with intent to murder his one-time friend, Attorney John Lockwood.

She denied that anything improper took place on a trip to Florida made by Mrs. Carpenter, Lockwood and herself. Defense witnesses had testified that Mrs. Carpenter and Lockwood were seen on a tourist cabin bed with looked back as they passed her and smiled. They probably thought she was meeting a lover or husband, for her cheeks were flushed, her eyes bright with eagerness.

And now her thoughts were to him first? Should she just blurt it out about Liz and be done with it, or break it gently?

She saw him coming at last. He was close enough to touch her before he even recognized her, and when he did he looked surprised and a touch embarrassed.

"Well hello, Jenny! Fancy seeing you here. Going somewhere?" He was being polite, and already his gaze was drifting her, looking for someone else.

"No," Jenny said quietly. "I came to meet you, Tod."

It was an instant before the words seemed to register.

"Come to meet me?" "Yes, Liz told me you'd be on this train. She asked me to come."

"Liz? Has something happened?" He dropped his bags and reached for her shoulders. His touch made her shiver involuntarily.

"Yes, in a way something's happened."

"For heaven's sake, Jenny!" The color drained out of his face and he gave her a quick shake. "She's not hurt."

"No. Nothing like that," Jenny said. She was aware people were hesitating to watch.

Tod saw too, and took his hands away.

"Well," he said gruffly, "what is the matter? Where is Liz?"

"Maybe we'd better get out of here, before I try to explain," Jenny's voice trembled, in spite of her efforts to keep it steady. Tod was even more handsome than he used to be, and he was angry at her too, just as Nina had said he would be. And she hadn't even told him about Liz yet. Outside, Tod hailed a cab. The snow was still falling.

In the privacy of the cab, Tod turned to her. "All right now, Jenny, what is it?"

"Liz — Liz is married."

Tod's blue eyes searched her face in disbelief. "Married?" she could see he didn't believe it.

"You're kidding. What kind of a gag is this? Who thought it up?" There was not even the old friendliness in his eyes now.

He would hate her always for having told him this humiliating piece of news, Jenny thought bleakly.

several bottles of liquor in evidence.

Mrs. Sullivan said the judge made the advances several months ago in the Carpenter home, before the judge and his wife separated. She said Carpenter came into her room while Mrs. Carpenter was out of town.

"He sat down on the bed and made some advances to me," the mother-in-law said, adding that she resisted and told him to leave. "From then on he kept making advances and dirty remarks," she said. "I told him if he didn't stop I'd shoot him with my own gun."

The state's rebuttal to defense testimony that Carpenter, Fulton county civil court judge, had fired at Lockwood in self defense, is expected to be completed by nightfall. The trial probably will go to the jury tonight or tomorrow.

As the trial entered its fifth day after a weekend recess, both the accused and the accuser had told their versions of the pre-dawn shooting and the sensational events which preceded it.

Lockwood testified that the judge chased him four blocks the night of July 27, shot at him four times and wounded him in the face.

The judge doesn't admit shooting the attorney — just shooting at him — but maintains he was justified.

The golden-eye fly is so-called because the eye in some lights appears to be of burnished gold.

Another Hollywood Engagement Goes Way of Many Others

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 19 — (AP) — William D. Pawley, Jr., son of the former ambassador to Brazil, said today he and Elizabeth Taylor of the movies have "mutually agreed" to call off their engagement.

Asked if the picture commitments of Miss Taylor in Hollywood had anything to do with the decision, Pawley said:

"Yes, that had something to do with it."

Pawley had no other comment. Miss Taylor's engagement was announced by her mother, Mrs. Francis Taylor, June 6, but no date was set for the wedding.

"This courtesy is contagious!"

One of our party-line customers decided the other day that the others on his line deserved a round of applause, and he wrote us a letter about it. He said:

"I am writing this note to compliment my party-line associates for their thoughtfulness in sharing the line. They are what makes party-line telephone service extremely enjoyable and satisfactory."

"If they try the line while I'm using it they very gently lift the receiver; and when they hear a conversation going on, they—also very gently—replace the receiver."

"Also they limit the length of the conversations. I have yet to wait more than two minutes for them to release the line after I have tried it to make a call."

"This courtesy is contagious; they have me doing it."

Party-line service is the choice of about half our customers in normal times when anyone who wants it can have an individual line. But today a good many party-line customers are waiting for the individual lines they would have if equipment were plentiful.

We want to be able to give everyone the service he or she prefers. Where equipment in neighborhoods permits it, we are making some progress in that direction now, despite the continuing heavy demand for telephones from those still without any service.

What we are working to do is eventually to get everyone the type of service and as much service as he or she wants. We appreciate your understanding.

Chinese War Headed for UN Discussion

New York, Sept. 19 —(AP)—The Chinese war today appeared headed for the United Nations in the near future.

The Chinese delegation to the U. N. maintained silence on reports from Canton that the nationalist government is considering putting its struggle against communism up to the U. N., either in a general assembly which meets tomorrow or the security council.

But key U. N. delegates arriving for the assembly speculated privately that it is only a question of time before the Chinese war will be on the U. N. agenda.

If the Canton government does lodge charges, these sources speculated, they may involve Russia. This would receive the quick and personal attention of Foreign Minister Andrei V. Vishinsky, fiery Soviet diplomat leading the Russian delegation again.

The United States delegation also kept silence on the Chinese situation. But U. N. circles pointed directly to a speech yesterday by Ambassador Philip C. Jessup as an indication of the U. S. course if a case is made by China.

Jessup spoke at a meeting of the American Association for the United Nations starting the annual observance of the founding of the U. N.

Jessup, who has been directing state department study of the Chinese situation, pledged American support through the U. N. to free peoples fighting communism in Asia and Europe.

"It is the policy of our government," he said, "to use the full measure of its influence to support the attainment of freedom by all peoples who, by their acts, show themselves worthy of it and ready for it."

"We shall strive unrelentingly through the United Nations and in association with free peoples, whether they be in Europe or in Asia, to see to it that freedom is preserved."

In the early European universities, the professors were hired by the students.

Movieland Mourns Loss of Morgan

Hollywood, Sept. 19 —(UP)—The movie industry and fans throughout the nation today mourned the death of Frank Morgan, beloved comedian whose sly chuckle and stilted double-talk carried him through nearly four decades of fame.

Morgan died in his sleep at his Beverly Hills mansion yesterday. He was 59. A doctor said death apparently resulted from a heart attack. His wife of 35 years, Alma, found him dead when she awoke at noon.

"He just went to sleep and never woke up," said his business manager, Mrs. Marguerite Chery.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Morgan had spent Saturday evening at home, holding a quiet dinner party with his son George, 32, his wife and two house guests, and went to bed about 11.

Friends said his health had never appeared better. Recently he had taken up swimming in addition to his long-standing sport as a yachtsman.

The jovial hardworking actor had just finished a part in "Key to the City" at MGM, where he had been under contract since he came to Hollywood in 1933 and was ready to play Buffalo Bill in "Annie Get Your Gun."

Morgan was born in New York City in 1890, the son of a wealthy importer, George W. Morgan. He worked as a toothbrush salesman, cowboy, ship stoker and dishwasher and then went on the stage when he heard that his brother Ralph, now 61, had given up a law career to become an actor. He took his brother's stage name of Morgan.

Bradley May Handle Pact Organization

Washington, Sept. 19 —(AP)—Gen Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the American joint chiefs of staff, appears certain to become the key figure in the Atlantic pact military organization.

The military organization, consisting of a series of defense planning committees, is to be created here Oct. 5. It is expected to come up with a set of unified defense plans for the whole Western European-North American Atlantic ocean area in about six months.

Speed in laying out at least the general plans of a unified strategy is considered essential now by the state and defense departments.

One reason a congress may make full-scale American army aid to Europe at least partly dependent on the existence of such plans. That is one of the major new points in the bill now before the senate.

Write the American member of the 12-nation military organization has yet to be designated by the President, defense and diplomatic officials said there seemed to be no doubt that he would be Bradley.

The 59-year-old general is noted for getting along with people and getting things done.

He is already regarded highly by Europeans as the leader of that school of military planners who contend Western Europe can and must be held against any aggression by Russia. In public statements Bradley has declared it to be this government's policy that security, instead of abandonment and later liberation, is the key stone for Western European military planning.

To that end Bradley has urged congress to authorize and finance a program of American arms aid to Europe.

"The essence of our overall strategy is this," he told congress July 30. "There is formidable strength and an obvious economy of efforts, resources and manpower in this collective strategy, when each nation is capable of its own defense as part of a collective strategic plan."

The Atlantic defense setup, which was blueprinted here Saturday by the 12-nation council of foreign ministers, gives the United States a dominant role. State department officials said other countries insisted it should be that way.

An evident recognition of predominant United States military power and its importance as a source of military assistance for the other alliance members.

DOROTHY DIX The Price of Matrimony

Dear Miss Dix: I am a young man, 23 years old, and have the instinct of any normal person to marry, but am not economically independent, nor do I have any prospect of being such for years to come. Is a man supposed to stay single just because he can't support a wife? Women only marry when men have money, and I fail to see where that makes them any better than women of the street. What is your opinion?

J. A. C.

Answer: I think there is no other such bunk as the charge that men make that women marry only for money. Perhaps there may have been some grain of truth in it in the old days when there were no vocations open to women but teaching and housework, and a woman had to marry in order to get somebody to support her. But certainly in these days, when any intelligent, able-bodied girl can support herself quite as likely as a husband will be able to do it, women do not marry for a meal ticket. They go out and earn their own bread and butter, and nine times out of ten when they get married it is because they love some man well enough to give up a good job for him. And mightily often it is a poor trade, and the girl knows it when she is making it.

Proof
For the proof of this statement look around among your own acquaintances. How many girls do you know whom you even suspect of having married for money? How many men do you know who have the price to buy a wife, even if girls were willing to sell themselves? The value of a wife runs into real money and only rich men can afford to buy gold-digging ladies.

On the contrary, don't you know dozens and dozens of girls who have married poor boys, knowing that they would have to give up a mahogany desk for a cookstove,

QUITS BOARD

Little Rock — Mrs. J. L. Hollis of Little Rock has resigned from the Arkansas Girls' training school board of control. She is third member to quit since recent riots and escapades. Another woman will be named to replace her.

but few thought the job would be as easy as it was. The Longhorns scored in every period.

The Aggies were overpowered at every turn but made Villanova's job easier by losing the ball eight times on fumbles.

The Razorbacks of Arkansas turned up for their opener with a 2 1/2-hour intrasquad scrimmage game Saturday. The regulars swamped the reserves, 13 touchdowns to one.

If it did nothing else, the session gave promise that Leon (Muscles) Campbell, the Porkers' ace fullback, will be his old self this year despite a recurring hernia. Playing with a special truss for protection, Campbell ran at full speed. He scored two touchdowns, one on a 60-yard run.

Other bright points in the scrimmage were the passing of sophomore Quarterbacks Don Lione, Charlie Temple and Jim Rinehart; the punting of veteran Louie Schaufele; the place-kicking of soph Fullback Joe Baldridge and the broken field running of little Sammy Furg transfer from Magnolia A. and M.

Discouraging to Coach John Barnhill and his staff was the fact that it was the starting eleven which yielded the lone tally scored by a combination of fourth, fifth and sixth stringers.

Southerners Say Truman Keeps Heat on

Washington, Sept. 19.—(UP)— Southern Democrats believed today that President Truman is keeping the heat on his senate leaders for action this year on one of the contested civil rights bills.

With no prospect now for adjourning congress before mid-October, debate on a civil rights measure and the inevitable southern filibuster will provide the first test for the new debate-limiting rule accepted by southern Democrats after a filibuster last winter.

One southern leader told reporters he understands the Mr. Truman has advised his senate lieutenants that he wants a civil rights bill taken up this year. Senate Democratic leader Scott W. Lucas III, has never excluded the issue from the program despite the length of the current session.

Southern Democrats also became suspect last week when a senate labor subcommittee approved a fair employment practice bill, which they consider the most unacceptable of the President's civil rights proposals. The full labor committee deferred action on the measure Friday but it may vote on it this week.

The fair employment bill would run into more opposition outside the senate than would such other civil rights bills as the anti-lynching and anti-poll tax legislation.
Hence there presumably would be a better chance of getting the needed 64 votes on either of those measures to limit debate and force a vote.

Fair Weather Predicted for Most of Nation

Most of the nation had fairweather today and temperatures generally within normal late summer

Their mercury was well above normal in the southern states but elsewhere it held close to seasonal levels.

Scattered showers were reported in Texas and Arkansas, the North Atlantic states and the Lake Superior region.

College Grid Play in Full Swing This Week

By WILL GRIMSLEY

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The college football season, just born, grows up in a hurry this week with four of the country's five topranking teams facing snowy foes and heavy head-knocking slated for all sections.

The South and Southwest particularly cut loose just as if it were the middle of November.
Giants slug it out with giants instead of practicing punches as breathers.

Michigan, No. 1 in the Associated Press 1948 ranking of gridiron might, runs against a Michigan State rival that finished strong last year after losing early decisions to the Wolverines (13-7) and Notre Dame (26-7).

The season for Michigan State which closed with a 6-2-2 record and most of its athletes still on the eligible list.

Notre Dame, No. 2, plays Indiana and North Carolina, No. 3, traditional adversary which is always tough.

California, No. 4, is the only member of the upper bracket ticketed for a mild afternoon, the Rose-bowlers tackling St. Mary's of California. The Golden Bears won their opener Saturday from Santa Clara, 21-7, while St. Mary's was bowling to Oregon, 24-7.

The fifth ranking team, Oklahoma, has a neat job cut out for it in Boston college at Boston Friday. Denny Myers is reported to have a formidable club at Boston which might surprise the Sugar bowl champions from the oil country.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Red Riffe, who had charge of the Detroit farm system before he was promoted to the manager's post, the unfortunate position of not being able to blame anyone else for his troubles. Detroit, the hottest team in the American league for a while, began to slip when George Kell was hurt and Red is finding that he not only hasn't adequate replacements now, but the prospects for help from the farms next year are poor.

"Not a first baseman in sight and we also need hard-hitting outfielders and a catcher," is Riffe's complaint.

Dick Metz who'll abandon the golf trail next summer to run a golf and riding school on his 2, 400 acre ranch near Arkansas City, Kansas, figures to make more dough that way than he would in tournaments. Metz says he has had more than 50 inquiries about the three-month course, but he only has 20 kids who'll pay $1,000 apiece for the course.

If Dick needs an assistant in this ranching-golfing proposition, the obvious guy seems to be Johnny Bauer.

The Yankee man of the hour is Hank Bauer, speedy strong-armed outfielder.

Joe DiMaggio, who missed the first 65 games of the season, reported at game time yesterday with a high fever. The Clipper, only regular hitting over .300, was scratched from the lineup and Bauer installed.

Bauer powered the Yanks to a 7-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians yesterday. The victory preserved the Yanks' two and one-half game lead over the Boston Red Sox, who mauled the Chicago White Sox, 11-5.

Bauer, in sick bay the past two weeks with a sore muscle, drove home three runs. He doubled Charley Keller home in the third to snap a 3-3 tie and then clinched the game with a two-run triple in the seventh. The Red Sox met no resistance from Chicago. The Boston walloping crew, led by Ted Williams, rammed nine runs across the plate in the first two innings.

Solid hitting also sparked the National league's front-running St.
Louis Cardinals to a 15-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.
Home runs by Ron Northey, Stan Musial and Enos Slaughter featured an 18-hit onslaught.

The massacre of the Phils produced the Cards' two and one-half game edge over the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers tamed the Chicago Cubs, 7-1.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants divided a doubleheader, the Giants taking the opener, 13-9, and the Pirates the nightcap, 7-2.

The Cincinnati Reds edged the Boston Braves, 7-6 in the first game of a bargain bill. The second was called after nine innings because of darkness with the score deadlocked at 1-1.

Philadelphia and Detroit swept both games in the only American league twin bill. The A's dumped the St. Louis Browns, 7-5 and 7-4, and the Tigers brushed by Washington, 9-2 and 5-2.

Farm Price Guarantees on Carpet

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer
(For James Gmarlow)

Washington, Sept. 19 —(AP)—How far is the government obligated to go in carrying out farm price guarantees?

Do laws setting up mandatory price support programs require the government to see to it that every farmer get at least the minimum guarantee for every bushel of his grain, every pound of his livestock and every dozen of his eggs?

This question bobbed up again this week after the agriculture department announced a material change in its program for supporting hog prices.

The department said in effect that from now on it will not attempt to assure any farmer the minimum price for any of his hogs. All it will do will be to try to keep the average of prices received by all farmers for all hogs from dropping below the support level.

Prior to this change the department had committed itself to maintain prices at all local markets at the price support level. Under this commitment individual farmers had fair assurance that they would get the guaranteed minimum.

Now about all the individual farmer can count on is a price in the neighborhood of the support level. It is not likely, officials said, that individual prices at the height of the winter marketing season will drop more than $1 below the prospective national support average of possible $14.50 per 100 pounds.

While hog prices tend to hold a general level, local supply conditions as well as local and nearby demands for pork often vary. This variation could reflect itself in hog prices above support levels in some markets and below in others. But as long as the average of the prices of the various markets is equal to or above the support level, the government will do nothing about it.

This change in the hog support program greatly reduces the possibility of extensive government buying of pork this fall and winter to carry out the price guarantee.

The new scheme may bring criticism from farmers and their congressmen. Many farm leaders contend that it is the intent of price support laws that the government use every possible means to assure every farmer the guaranteed price for all his products.

In making the change at this time, the department opens the door to the contention that it is changing rules in the middle of the game. The argument can be made that the change should have been made before farmers bred and raised the hogs to be sold under the new rules.

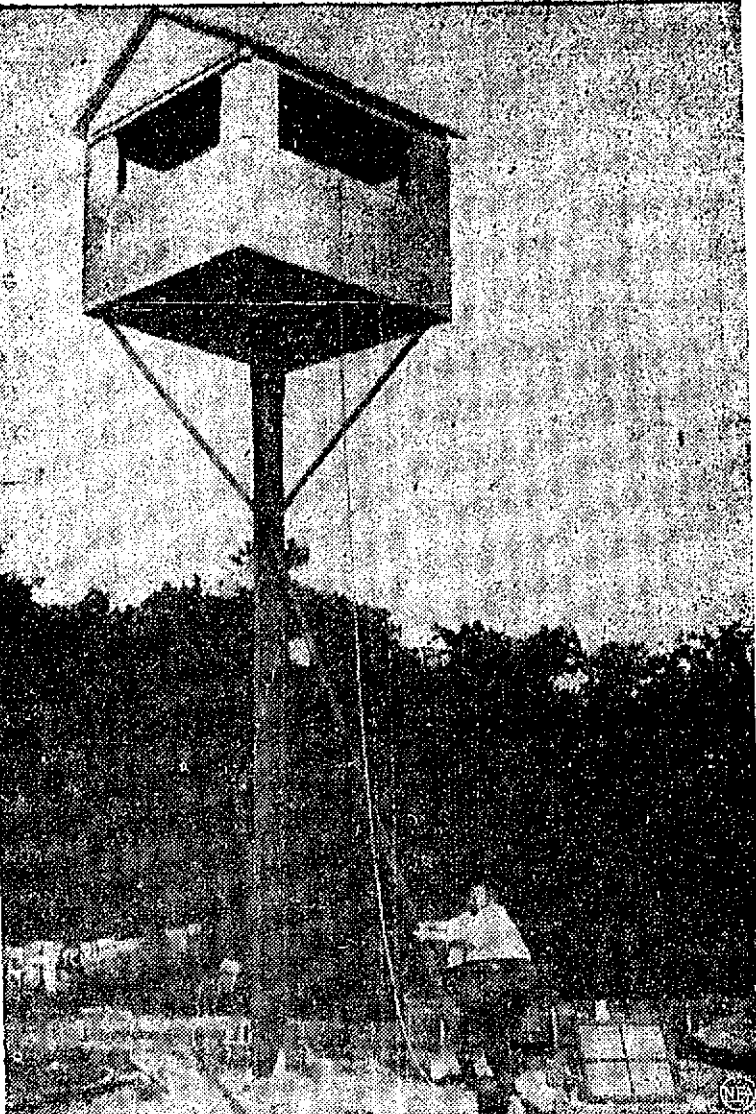

CELEBRATION OPENS

Memphis, Sept. 19 —(AP)—Southwestern today began a three-day celebration of its centennial. As a part of the festivities, Dr. Peyton N. Rhodes will be inaugurated Wednesday as the new president of the college. Four Presbyterian synods also will hold meetings during the three days.

Judge to Rule on New Trial Motion

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 18 —(UP)—Judge Thomas B. Greener was expected to set a date early this week on a motion for a new trial for Professor Russell B. Maxey, who faces up to 40 years imprisonment for the pistol-whipping of a beautiful nurse.

This motion was the first defense move toward appeal of Maxey's conviction Saturday night of assault with intent to murder Nurse Ann Pierce and burglary.

Maxey's attorneys were expected to object to testimony concerning his earlier conviction on a nude photograph charge in Knoxville, Tenn. They were believed prepared to appeal to the state Supreme court if the new trial motion is denied.

State attorneys contended that Maxey tried to force his attentions on Miss Pierce by threatening to expose nude pictures of her. She testified that he gave her a savage beating when she spurned him.

Judge Greener postponed passing sentence until after the hearing on the defense motion. Maxey could get a life term, but the judge would not consider 40 years and maximum because the jury recommended mercy.

Greek Threat to Invade Albania Has Governments on Both Sides Worried

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Greece's threat to invade communist Albania as a measure of self-defense, if guerrilla forces launch further attacks on Greek soil from Albania, has capitals on both sides of the Iron Curtain worried.

Washington, London and Moscow are particularly concerned, and it's reported that the Anglo-American brotherhood is likely to take steps to discourage any such military operation by their Greek ally. It wouldn't be surprising if Russia also advised Albania to go easy.

Why? Well, because a Greek invasion of Albania could very easily precipitate another world war. And perhaps the most significant, and hopeful, aspect of the current affair is that both sides in the cold war are anxious to avoid another general upheaval.

The Balkans through the centuries have been the whipping ground of armed conflicts. The situation at the moment is particularly delicate, not only on account of the Greece-Albanian row but because relations between Turkey and Bulgaria again are tense—or perhaps one should say more tense than usual. To this must be added the feud which has developed between Yugoslavia and Russia's Balkan satellites because of dictator Tito's political revolt against Moscow.

Of course the fact that Greece's sponsors frown on any invasion of Albania is in no sense due to doubts as to the truth of the Athens charges. The Albanian operations have been carried on more or less openly and brazenly for a long time. It just isn't smart to retaliate in such fashion as to precipitate another global upheaval.

You wouldn't think such a little country as Albania could stir up so much trouble. It has an area of only 10,029 square miles and an estimated population of about a million. It's a rugged and rocky little land, occupied by a rugged and rocky people, many of them primitive tribesmen who are constantly feuding.

Albania lies between Yugoslavia and Greece and is a corridor into the Balkan peninsula. For this reason it has for hundreds of years been used as a gateway by invading armies. Moreover, because of her position Albania herself has been the object of much conquest and has been ruled by the Romans, the Byzantines, the Slavs, the Turks and by Mussolini, the would-be great conqueror.
